Honoring the brightest and best voice over artists of the year, the 2008 Voicely Award nominations are now open.

PR9.NET January 03, 2008 - Toronto, Canada – The 2008 Voicely Awards are now open to receive voice actor nominations! Hosted by Voices.com, the 2nd Annual Voicely Awards Show is the only of its kind to exclusively honor voice-over professionals. The inaugural Voicely Awards show in 2007 identified 5 categories of significance and prestige, including Best Male Voice, Best Female Voice, Best New Voice, Best Personal Branding, and a Lifetime Achievement Award.

This year, there are several new categories that have been added including Best Child Voice, Best Teen Voice, Best Foreign Voice and Best Voice Team. Each category has its own judge, ensuring that seasoned industry personalities who specialize in their respective award category are judging the finalists.

Similar to awards such as the Academy Awards, also known as the Oscars, honoring actors and filmmakers, the Voicely Awards recognize voice actors and voice talents for their contributions and efforts over the year in the voice over industry.

Voice talents and voice actors are hired for their vocal talents to complete various projects for organizations, companies, and institutions requiring voice over services including commercials for radio and television, promos, movie trailers, audio book narration, podcasts, videos, animation, videogames, telephone recordings and more. Theirs are the voices that are heard but not seen.

Judges for the 2008 Voicely Awards include:

- * Best Male Voice - Connie Terwilliger
- * Best Female Voice - Marc Cashman
- * Best New Voice - Joan Baker
- * Best Child Voice - Sunday Muse
- * Best Teen Voice - Cynthia Songé
- * Best Voice Team - James R. Alburger and Penny Abshire
- * Best Personal Branding - Julie Williams
- * Lifetime Achievement - Bettye Zoller
