Following personal computer, digital TV, the next gadget that will change our contemporary lives is digital photo frame. With more and more people turning their aesthetic eyes to it and mass production, digital photo frame will surely become a hot hit in the consumer electronic market.

PR9.NET January 25, 2008 - Hong Kong – Together with personal computer, home theater, home DVD recorder, digital photo frame is becoming the latest but absolutely not the last consumer electronic that make its own way into contemporary homes. As the replacement of the old still photo frame, it is surely superior by its robust functionalities.

Sourcingmap.com, a Chinese electronics exporter, recently announced its new 7" full-function digital frame(<http://www.sourcingmap.com/family-digital-photo-frame-albumsd-mmc-p-12232.html>). The frame specified as 480x234 resolution, multiple music/movie/picture animation, SD, MMC, MS and XD card expendable and USB host, are available worldwide now at a price of 175$ and cheaper if order in bulk. "With such all the functions, it will fulfill any tasks you many want it to do" said Ann Robinson, manager of market department of the company, "now, it is considered as fashion to buy digital photo frames, not just fun and convenience".

Since the beginning of digital age, more and more electronics have become necessary home appliances. Statics show that more than 50 percent of U.S. homes able to experience the reality of digital television; More than 40 percent of homes have a home theatre; Over 30 percent of U.S. homes now have multiple personal computers. While the percentage of homes using digital photo frame is relatively much smaller, means that there are grate growing space and profits in this marketplace.
