PR9.NET January 29, 2008 - Milford, CT - Many people agonize over finding the perfect Valentine's Day gift for their sweetie. It's a sensitive matter and it's easy to get it wrong. Modern technology has improved the process dramatically, though: no longer does a busy husband have to just come home on February 14th with a pink teddy bear and a box of chocolates, feeling sheepish and knowing his wife won't be happy with him. Now he has another option: a customized, photo-enhanced gift from DesignerPhotoGifts.com.

Designer Photo Gifts, a Milford, Connecticut company, was a trailblazer in the field of photo-customized gifts, and as technologies have improved they've more than kept up with the times. Designer Photo Gifts makes it easy for anyone to emblazon the image of their honeybunch on a cuddly afghan, perfect for curling up under on a cold winter afternoon. For a completely romantic Valentine's Day gift, consider having a wedding picture, or other cherished image, printed on a lacy-edged porcelain plate – here is an object sure to be displayed in the home, with pride and joy, for years to come.

The process of creating a customized photo gift is very simple. The customer selects an image, uploads it or mails it to Designer Photo Gifts, and Designer Photo Gifts handles the rest. Shipping is fast, and the gifts are beautiful, sure to be cherished mementoes.
