Online wireless accessory store to launch first desktop charger for Motorola RAZR2 V8 V9 V9m featuring a second slot for an extra battery

PR9.NET February 11, 2008 - Los Angeles, Calif. – TalkieTech.com launched the first available desktop cradle for the popular Motorola RAZR2 today, making it one of the first retailers to offer this exclusive RAZR2 charger. The cradles are now available for purchase at their website, www.Talkietech.com, after months of anticipation due to unexpected delays.

"We've been waiting since last November for the Motorola RAZR2 Cradles and we're thrilled that it's finally here, just in time for the Valentine's Day Sale" said Alex K., Sr. Marketing Manager of Talkie Tech. The Motorola RAZR2 is the successor to the highly popular Motorola RAZR V3 and is available through all the major cell phone carriers including AT&T, T-Mobile, Verizon and Sprint. Even U.S. Cellular and Alltel have their own versions of the RAZR2.

"It's no surprise that this cradle is in high demand...since desktop chargers for non-PDA phones are very hard to come by and because the RAZR2 is such a popular phone," said Alex K, before mentioning that the first shipment is expected to sellout before the end of the month

The Motorola RAZR2 V8 V9 V9m Desktop Cradle features a 2nd battery slot that allows users to charge an extra battery and supports all three models of the RAZR2. It's designed to be used as an all-in-one desktop charger, making it possible for people to simultaneously charge their phones and an additional battery via a UL certified AC/DC adapter. Featured on the cradle, is a smart overcharge protection circuit and an LCD screen that displays charging status for both the phone and the additional battery.
