No need to wait for a technician or take your computer to a shop anymore.

PR9.NET March 20, 2008 - Reno, NV - ITX is proud to offer Live PC Repair Remotely. "We are in the midst of a very exciting time here at ITX and want you to be involved!" said Sean Golriz, President of ITX. To see more about this exciting new service visit their website: www.itxusa.net

With Live, Remote PC Repair a Microsoft Certified, licensed, bonded and insured System Analyst can log into and repair a PC remotely. No more waiting for a technician to show up or disconnecting your tower and hauling it to a shop! Customers will be able to see everything the Analyst is doing on their monitor and have the ability to "disconnect" the session at the click of a button.

According to Toby Furtaw, Director of Operations, "The best part is if we don't fix the problem the customer does not get charged!"

ITX has recently launched a nationwide campaign and they are getting an unbelievable response. Please take a moment to look at their new website: www.itxusa.net and see how they can help you today.
