Award winning wedding ideas publication seeks couples who are planning costumed weddings, especially weddings with an elvish theme to feature on new wedding services directory website.

PR9.NET March 30, 2008 - Hagley, UK - The Wedding Organizer wedding services directory is seeking couples who have had or who are planning alternative weddings that have extraordinary wedding themes. "In particular we are looking for people that are planning, or have recently had, elvish weddings," says Jean Hunt, publisher of the award winning Wedding Organizer book. "At the Wedding Organizer we work hard to keep abreast of all wedding trends and it seems that most wedding directories just group together 'alternative weddings' without really finding out much about them. However, we're different and we want to feature real weddings on our new wedding services directory website and in our award winning wedding ideas and wedding services directory publication." For more information go to www.wedding-organizer.co.uk or call Jean Hunt on 01562 883124.

Elvish weddings are one of many wedding themes chosen by brides and grooms that want to have alternative weddings. Medieval style weddings have been around for some time, other wedding themes revolve around more modern eras. "What really interests us about Elvish Weddings," explains Jean Hunt, "Is that the styles of wedding gown, the wedding accessories and sometimes even the wedding vows are based on something fictional, rather than a real period in history, or some kind of conventional hobby or interest that the couple share."

When asked about what The Wedding Organizer publishers want to know from Elvish wedding couples, Jean explains; "We'd like to do a short interview over the phone, or the couple could simply e-mail a summary of their day, but what would be critical is a set of wedding photos of their wedding day and permission to publish them online and in our wedding book."
