SafeCheckIn.com is an exciting concept that allows single women the security of having someone always waiting for her to return from any activity. It is the new private safety net for women who like to be secure when going out alone for any activity.

PR9.NET April 01, 2008 - Reno, Nevada - When going out alone, women often have a feeling of vulnerability. This is especially true if they are one of the increasing numbers of single women who don't have the support system of nearby relatives, roommates or friends. With single households now representing over 42% of the population and of these 54% of these households being single women, who is there to give security when they go out alone? At SafeCheckIn.com, we are! Now a single woman can have a guardian angel waiting to make sure she comes back safely from any activity she goes out on. SafeCheckIn.com is a service where individuals can put in descriptive information about themselves as well as information about any activity they are going to do. When they "check out" SafeCheckIn will monitor their absence until the member "checks in" again. This information is kept strictly private unless a member goes overdue. If the member is overdue then SafeCheckIn will attempt to contact the member to update their status. If SafeCheckIn cannot reach the member, we then contact the people that the member has designated as emergency contacts with the local authorities as being contacts of last resort. SafeCheckIn is designed for anyone who goes out on dates, hiking, running, skiing/snowboarding, takes road trips, shopping or any activity where an individual wants to make sure there is someone waiting for them to return home safely. It is that simple... tell SafeCheckIn where you are going and when you expect to come back. We will make sure you are safe or in the event you do not check back in and cannot be contacted, notify anyone you choose of your overdue status. THERE IS NO OTHER SERVICE LIKE THIS ANYWHERE!

With the number of single households increasing every year there is an extreme need for a service like SafeCheckIn.com. More and more women are going out by themselves and to have a service that will wait to make sure they come back safe is a necessity. This service can be used for any woman who has left an abusive partner or can be used when meeting anyone new whether they are a first date, a business meeting or a stranger for any reason. Members can be assured that if something happens, someone will be looking for them! How many news reports have we all heard about people going missing but the authorities did not have enough information to do an effective search? That is exactly what the service is designed for! When you go out, make sure you check out so someone is waiting for you to check in.
