High-traffic job search engine Careerjet launches new website specifically geared towards Turkish job seekers.

PR9.NET April 10, 2008 - London, United Kingdom - A new job search engine geared towards Turkish job seekers has been launched by Careerjet. As the web's most comprehensive global job search engine, Careerjet boasts an international network that connects job seekers to the greatest number of worldwide employment offers.

Launched in the UK in 2002, Careerjet has successfully connected a rapidly growing number of job seekers to millions of employment opportunities. Careerjet employs sophisticated technology to crawl the entire web for job offers, scanning for job offers featured on recruitment agencies, newspapers and job boards. These job offers are then compiled into a relevant list according to search definitions, featuring links that redirect to the website offering the original job vacancy. Job seekers can thus easily locate an ideal job in one single search.

Now, Turkish job seekers can benefit from the same services offered by Careerjet's vast network of country-specific job search engines. In beta since December 2007, www.careerjet.com.tr now affords Turkish job seekers free, immediate access to employment opportunities at home with one easy search. The Careerjet search engine interface is in Turkish, as are the majority of the job listings.

Tens of thousands of job offers have been added to Careerjet Turkey and the last two months alone have seen the job seeker traffic more than double, rendering Careerjet the country's most reliable, comprehensive job search engine.

About Careerjet

Since 2002, vertical search engine Careerjet has been simplifying the job search process by connecting job seekers around the globe to the web's widest range of job offers in a single, free search. Careerjet's success largely relies on its semantic analysis technology which makes it possible to index job offers from a theoretically unlimited number of websites independent of their underlying structure, design or language. The result of this advanced technology is a daily updated index of more than ten million jobs.

Careerjet's international network of job search engines index employment opportunities in over 50 countries, whose interfaces and job listings are native to each country's site.
