

My fertile ground announces the launch of its official website

myfertileground.com, April 22, 2008

URL: <http://www.pr9.net/health/environmental/7942april.html>

The latest website, myfertileground.com is ready to serve its worldwide people who need information on the fertility and infertility issues.

PR9.NET April 22, 2008 - Cumming, GA - My fertile ground has launched its newest website, myfertileground.com for those couples who want to seek information related to pregnancy, fertility and infertility issues. This exclusive website offers an opportunity to women to talk to other ladies who have experienced all these situations and gone through the same feelings.

Designed for both expecting and planning to conceive mothers, this website is dedicated to provide all the information to them; moreover, women can also grab all the fertility related information from its certified doctors. "Our primary goals to provide all the information related to infertility issue to all those women, who want to search for the causes and signs of infertility, need assistance from the doctors, trying to conceive babies and want to share their experiences of motherhood with other women" explained Trish Kellogg, the spokesperson of the company.

"The other important goal of our website is to create a community, where every women can share every fertility problem and pregnancy related issues with the other females, who had experienced the same and have the knowledge about these issues" he stated further.

With its all assorted services related to infertility medications, questions, forums, fertility calculator, Infertility treatment, health nutrition information, adoption aspect after infertility etc. it is ready to serve its customer with its newest information house. Myfertilityground.com also offers a different section of articles and blogs that can be fruitful to search out all the information regarding to pregnancy, infertility and other needed details.

###

About myfertileground.com

Find more information regarding to this website at www.myfertileground.com

Website: <http://www.myfertileground.com>

PR9.NET - Your Free Press Release Service