PR9.NET April 25, 2008 - Tampa, FL – Milk does a body good, and Tribeca ColorSalon, a South Tampa hair salon, is proving it's beneficial for hair health as well. Tribeca Milkshake treatments drench hair in moisture and increase the diameter of the hair shaft by 25%. Clients walk away from the experience with a completely renewed mane.

"The Milkshake is a mask concept from Italy," says Brandon Wagner, Tribeca ColorSalon's creative director. "No one else in the Tampa area offers the service."

It's a panacea for those whose hair is still stuck in the winter doldrums. The product is applied as a mask and allowed to penetrate. Nourishing milk proteins alter both the internal and external hair strands, acting as a revitalizing and restructuring agent.

Two types of the Milkshake treatment are available. A natural milk mask for dry or damaged hair actually restructures the cortex of each strand with rice and avocado oils, moisturizers and Vitamin E. The active yogurt mask is best for natural or colored hair, and counts amino acids from yogurt as an effective ingredient.

"After a Milkshake treatment, you can expect smooth hair that's strong and resilient," Wagner says.
