The Acura MDX is a mid-size luxury crossover SUV produced by Acura since the 2001 model year. The MDX is the first crossover SUV to have third-row seating. The Alphanumeric name stands for 'Multi-Dimensional luXury'.

In 2006 Acura unveiled the 2007 Acura MD-X Concept, showing to the public an indication about the exterior styling of the upcoming completely redesigned MDX. Car and Driver magazine tested the 2008 model which won first place in the luxury division against SUVs like the Audi Q7, BMW X-5, Land Rover LR3, and Porsche Cayenne S. The 2008 Acura MDX's body has a wider track and a longer wheelbase than the previous MDX. The third row seats still remain small for adults. The redesigned Acura MDX's unit-body is engineered with Honda's Advanced Compatibility Engineering (ACE) body structure which is designed to absorb energy from a collision. When coupled with the Super Handling All-Wheel-Drive system, the MDX provides class-leading powertrain and handling performance among its current V6 competitors.
