Massachusetts deck construction and home improvement contractor Pristine Home Solutions says requests for eco-friendly products and construction practices are on the rise.

PR9.NET May 04, 2008 - Marlborough, MA - According to home improvement contractor Warren Fish, requests for green deck construction (<http://www.pristinehomesolutions.com/photos/deck-construction/>) and home improvement practices have doubled since 2007.

As the nation's eco-consciousness rises and the housing market falls, Fish says that homeowners are looking for ways to boost the resale value of their homes while also being socially responsible.

Fish says Massachusetts residents are actively seeking out his deck construction and home improvement contractor (<http://www.pristinehomesolutions.com>) business specifically because of his eco-friendly practices.

Fish's environmentally conscious practices include using eco-friendly products such as green cleaning products and low VOC paints, as well as High Efficiency Particulate Air (HEPA) vacuums for cleanup after the home improvement jobs are complete.

With a vast supply of retailers, Fish also offers deck construction customers the opportunity to choose from a selection of wood obtained from eco-friendly lumber sources.

"My clients not only feel great knowing that they are doing their part to reduce negative environmental impact, but they also consider it a selling point for when they are ready to put their home on the market. With more people opting for eco-friendly products and solutions, they feel that the socially conscious building practices add even more value to their home," says Warren Fish, president of Pristine Home Solutions (<http://www.pristinehomesolutions.com>).

Pristine Home Solutions has not only become a top choice for Massachusetts deck construction because of its green practices, but also for its high standards of quality. The company is heralded for its masterful screened in porches, farmer's porches, and custom designed back decks.
