Scratch card games, those staples of convenience stores and lottery retailers, have arrived online. The Internet offers these venerable games a chance to reach a whole new audience.

PR9.NET May 29, 2008 - Nicosia, Cyprus – A fun new way to gamble online has become available in the last few years. Scratch card games, for a long time the staple of land-based lottery retailers, have appeared in Flash formats on a number of websites. The online success of these games is driven by a number of factors: their simplicity, their relatively good winning percentages, and their compatibility with most web browsers.

Treasure On Net offers a good example of the "A" standard in online scratch games. The "Big Chance" game highlights all of what TON does right in bringing scratch games to the Internet. This game gives the player simple card, with 9 scratch-off sections. There are 3 treasures hidden on the card, and 3 chances to scratch a section. The value of the card is determined by the player's bet; bets can be made for 1, 2, 4, 6, 8, or 10 dollars, and the possible winnings increase with the size of the bet. The maximum winnings, on a $10 bet, are $2.50 for one treasure, $25 for uncovering two treasures, and $200 for uncovering 3 treasures. Every card is a potential winner, with three treasures hidden on it; it's up to the player to guess correctly and win.

All of Treasure On Net's games follow this basic pattern, albeit with some variations. Every game is a potential winner, with the "jackpot" hidden somewhere on the card, and every game pays winnings in proportion with the player's bet. In addition, TON offers players the choice of playing for fun or for real money, putting the player in full control of his gaming.

Online gaming makes a good pastime, and Treasure On Net's scratch games are a fine addition to the panoply of Internet-based games.
