It seems we battle this thing called love every day. Sometimes we feel so low that we just want to give up on life, love, and finding love. I have and I wanted this pain to yield to inner joy. Although forever changed, I express no hint of regrets because it's not about where we've been, but where we end up after the storm. I'm not perfect, but beautifully flawed by God.

PR9.NET June 12, 2008 - Miami, Florida – Angela M. Thomas is setting the pace and example through her books. When the road you are traveling seems difficult, she is there to encourage you to continue pressing forward to see your way to the victory. Angela desires to inspire both the younger and the older to overcome difficulties despite the cards they may have been dealt in life.

Dedicating her life to making a difference and determined to touch millions of lives in the coming years, Angela prays to help set the captives free. She is determined to continue writing until burdens are healed and mountains are moved in Jesus' name. She strongly believes that we are all a vital part of the father's heart, sent to bring hope to the hopeless, healing to the brokenhearted, and love to the forgotten.

A four-time author, Angela is about to release her latest book, "Hurts So Good" on June 16, 2008. Angela proudly wears several hats successfully. As a certified speaker; publisher, entrepreneur, counselor, wife, and mother of two daughters, Angela resides with her family Miami, Florida. Currently, Angela is promoting her books and speaking on a platform, themed: "The Merciful Recovery Team that is built to last through Spiritual Guidance, Passion, and Healing within these walls."

Angela's published books include "Chipping Away at the Soul of Me", "The Perfect Gift", "When Life Pushes You to the Edge", and "Cried My Last Tears".

Angela's books can be purchased on her website at www.AngelaMThomas.com where she can also be booked for speaking engagements and book signings. You may reach Angela at P.O. Box 700098, Miami, Florida 33170-0098. Contact number is (305) 793-1347.
