PR9.NET June 12, 2008 - Scottsdale AZ - For the 3rd consecutive year, Scottsdale Fine Properties has received the prestigious honor of being recognized as one of the World's Best Real Estate Agencies by the 2007 International Property Awards in conjunction with CNBC.

"We take a tremendous amount of pride in our 3rd consecutive nomination, and are thrilled to be the only nomination from North America. To compete with the world's best is truly a phenomenal achievement," said Lesley Martinson, Broker and Owner of Scottsdale Fine Properties.

The International Property Awards are supported by five media partners and no less than nine professional bodies, their aim being to identify the very best agents and developers in the residential property market. The selection of the nominees for this prestigious award is completed by a panel of highly respected judges who have a collective knowledge that is second to none in the industry.

"It's truly a tribute to our strong belief in client service, effort and dedication," said Martinson, "and further evidence our timeless and unique marketing strategies combined by a loyal client list and hard work are keeping us at the top of the Real Estate Game."

Scottsdale Fine Properties focuses on the luxury and executive home marketplace through their unique "One on One" program, but they also have a division that works with condos, second homes, seasonal homes and investment purchases.
